Hi Sandra,

Please see email below from one of my teachers. This just one example of the harassment my staff is increasingly being subjected to by [REDACTED] (front office secretaries, intervention people, spec Ed teachers etc). At least three others have made similar complaints.

My concern however is not so much this but rather that [REDACTED] is contacting a certain board member with false and misleading accusations and this is causing us a lot of distractions that is taking us away from moving the school forward.

You may have been made aware by Jose that in the last two weeks a certain board member has contacted Jose several times inquiring about many many things that we are supposedly doing wrong and in violation of. The calls Jose gets typically fit the following pattern:

1. [REDACTED] walks around harassing people about a specific topic she has on her mind (items purchased, role/responsibilities of specific front office staff, role/responsibilities of Academic Advocates which are funded by Promise Neighborhoods etc).
2. Within 48 hours I get a phone call from Jose telling me that a board member is asking about a specific topic. The topic in question 100% of the time coincides with the questions asked by [REDACTED] 1 or 2 days prior.

I realize not much can be done about this but I wanted to just bring this to your attention. [REDACTED] consistent harassment and unfounded accusations are increasingly distracting us from being able to focus on student achievement.

Furthermore, I have grown increasingly concerned that given the climate in the community re Alliant and other things these accusations by [REDACTED] have the potential to take on a life of their own and put at risk the following very positive district initiatives: Alliant, Promise Neighborhoods (Arne Duncan's visit in September), Partnership with SBCS, Hawkin Charter and the potential move to charter by CPM.

Given this, I'd like to ask you to please consider an alternative plan for dealing with [REDACTED] that includes having her placed at another location even if on an interim basis (until after the Arne Duncan visit and the Alliant situation gets resolved).

Thank you very much Sandra for all the support you and Jose have shown me. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thank you
